"Mr. MacNeale and Mr. Sargent knew of all the details of the transactions with which I was connected, and made their own examinations as to values. In examining abstract and titles I made no representations as to values."

Regarding a statement in a Cincinnati paper, to the effect that he was an exile for swindling his own aunt in a real estate deal, Judge Burnet said:

"That is another matter altogether. When I return to Cincinnati to set myself right, it will be found that my aunt owes me a large amount of money, instead of my being indebted to her."

T. C. Campbell, of 255 Broadway, claims that Burnet secured $188 on a questionable draft some weeks ago. Regarding this, Judge Burnet said:

"In July I gave a Mr. Potter a draft for $478. He did not use it for its full value, but only borrowed $139 from James Boys & Co., bankers at $2 Exchange place, and gave the draft for $478 as collateral security. Now the bankers are suling me for the whole amount.

It is alleged that Burnet and a real estate man named Leighton, secured mortgages on worthless lots, and realized big cash returns by inducing Treasurer Sargent and his son-in-iaw, MacNeale, to invest the funds of the Home in these worthless securities.

When Judge Burnet was shown a copy of a Cincinnati paper containing the charges against him, he said to an "Evening World" reporter:

"I have made no attempt to leave the country, but have been here for the past six months attending to some railroad business. Regarding the charges made against me in Cincinnati, I wish to deny all of them. I did own a tract of land on which there were two mortgages, one for $2,500 and one for $4.500. Capt. Reilly, when asked about the bomb, said:

bomb, said:

'Hey? Vhat is that? A bum in my precinct? I thought I had all those fellows driven out."

"A dynamite bomb," explained the Sergeant.

"I don't care whether it was "Dynamite Bum" or "Micky the Bum," broke in the Captain, "he has no business in this precinct, and if he don't keep out he will get thirty days. What's the charge against him, drunk or begging?"

Although Canary's positive declarations to the officers of the West Thirtieth street station caused Nellie's arrest he was not so sure to-day that she was the thief.

He told Justice Hogan that he and some friends were in Clark's all-night saloon, son Sixth avenue, near Thirtieth street, Thursday morning, when Nellie Brooks joined their party uninvited. Canary and his friends soon withbrooks joined their party uninvited. Canary and his friends soon withdrew to the outside, where the girl followed them, and as Canary turned his head to look down the avenue some one slipped the pin out of his scarf.

He thought at the time that Nellie was the thief, but he was not sure enough to swear to that fact to-day. Justice Hogan discharged the prisoner for lack of evidence. She and Canary left court together.
